Govt may ask...

He further said that the state government would develop and launch an app that would allow students to get in touch with Dial 100 in case of danger or untoward incident. The minister also said that girl students would be trained in self-defence. Joshi said that the government would do everything possible to prevent repeat such a horrific incident.

Reacting to the minister's statement, Congress state general secretary Chandrika Prasad Dwivedi said that providing security to women and girls was the responsibility of police and government. The government, he said, was issuing meaningless and dictatorial diktats to hide its failures.

Tehelka: Chidu wants response released

New Delhi

Former Finance Minister P Chidambaram has suggested that the media should ask the government for release of his reply to Congress chief Sonia Gandhi, who had reportedly asked him to look into the allegations of harassment of private firm First Global, the financiers of 'Tehelka'.

'Tehelka' magazine had "exposed" alleged corruption in defence deals during the Atal Bihari Vajpayee-led NDA government which later resulted in the resignation of then defence minister George Fernandes. The then BJP president, Bangaru Laxman, who was caught on camera taking money, was convicted later. Following the expose, a number of cases were registered against promoters of First Global, Devina Mehra and Shankar Sharma, by various investigation agencies. When the UPA government assumed office in 2004, Mehra and Sharma wrote a letter to Gandhi, who was chairperson of the National Advisory Council with the rank of a Union Minister, alleging that persecution by the agencies was continuing even then and sought redressal.

Stop politicking, rebuild economy: Manmohan

New Delhi

Former Prime Minister Manmohan Singh on Monday gave a sagacious advice to PM Modi: "Rebuild economy, stop politicking."

The advice came in an interview to Bloomberg Quint news agency. Singh underlined that the impact of demonetisation "on the weaker sections of our society and business is far more damaging than any economic indicator can reveal." His interview comes two days ahead of the first anniversary of demonetisation that the Congress and other opposition parties are to observe as a "Black Day".

He further asked his successor to work towards consensual policy solutions to rebuild the Indian economy. "I strongly feel the time for politicking over demonetisation is over. It is time the Prime Minister graciously acknowledges the blunder and seeks support from all to rebuild our economy."

Singh expressed concern regarding the loss of jobs in the small and medium enterprises sector and also emphasised the exacerbating impact that it may have on inequality. He said demonetisation may exacerbate such inequalities which will be harder to rectify in the future. In such a diverse country such as ours, inequality can prove to be a far greater social malaise than in other homogeneous nations. The Modi government has often explained the demonetisation move as an effort to reduce cash-based transactions and nudge the economy towards digital payments. Singh agrees that these objectives are certainly "laudable pursuits," but "we also need to get our economic priorities right." He said: "It is unclear that these goals of cashless economy will indeed help small enterprises become larger and achieve scale efficiencies. That should be our priority."
