BJP brass directs leaders to focus on their areas

The Central leadership of the BJP has directed state party leaders to focus on those constituencies where they command influence. National party chief J P Nadda and organisational general secretary BL Santosh have told the leaders in no uncertain terms that they would have to ensure favourable results in their zones of influence.

Santosh has also demarcated the regions where the different leaders would operate. Union minister Narendra Tomar will work in the area of the Morena Lok Sabha constituency, Home Minister Narottam Mishra would focus on Dabra and Datia seats. Other leaders have also been told about the areas of their responsibility.

The BJP is on a weak wicket in the seats in the Morena district. It is facing a tough challenge from the Congress in Morena, Jaura, Dimni, Sumavali and Ambah. All these constituencies are part of the Lok Sabha constituency of Tomar and he has been mandated with the responsibility of ensuring the party's victory there. Tomar has been told that the party should win all these seats. Sources say this means that Tomar would have to work real hard.

The leadership is worried that the party is in a soup in Tomar's constituency. Besides the BJP, its candidates are also at the target of the electorate. And the party is unable to understand the reason for this situation.

Mishra has been asked to devote all his energies to strengthening the party in Dabra and Bhander. He is said to be influential in the area. Mishra has already started working as per the leadership's directives.

National general secretary Kailash Vijayvargiya has been given the responsibility of five seats in the Malwa region and Lok Sabha member Nand Kumar Chouhan has been asked to concentrate on the two seats in Nimad.

The chief minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan would address public meetings in all the constituencies and would be in-charge of drawing up the overall strategy. Jyotiraditya Scindia will devote his time and energy to the seats in the Gwalior-Chambal divisions. Other seats will be managed by local party leaders.

No wait till retirement, all accounts to be settled during service: Govt

OUR STAFF REPORTER

State government has decided not to wait till retirement of an employee to settle final accounts including recovery of over payment. Employees in large numbers get overpaid due to wrong fixation or adding increments early in the salary. The wrong computation by staff often leads to over payment to the employees. Most of the time it happens because of erroneous fixation of salary in higher slab or adding an increment in the salary before the due date. These things crop up only at the time of retirement during final settlement of dues of an employee which leads to orders for recovery from person's gratuity etc.

Depts instructed to ensure recoveries in monthly installments

The state government has now instructed all the departments to keep tab on such developments and if there is any sort of over payment then recovery should be ordered immediately. The recovery should be calculated and divided in monthly installments spread for over two years that could extend up to three years.

State government has asked officials from finance and accounts departments to take care of such mistakes during service period only and recover the overpaid amounts during service period only. It has also fixed the responsibility of head of the department or unit if such mistakes go unnoticed. Recovery would be done from the official responsible, says the government order.

The development comes after courts' order where it had stopped the recovery citing that it was not the mistake of employee rather it was because of the person responsible for fixing the salary and the authority that did not find the mistake. The order also says that the recovery installment should not exceed 30% of his salary. Interest should also be calculated and added in recovery amount. If the recovery amount is bigger than it can also be deducted from arrears etc.
