B'DESH ON EDGE AS SALAFIST GROUPS UNITE, FEARS OF COUP

NEW DELHI

Bangladesh is witnessing an alarming consolidation of Islamist groups pushing for harsher religious laws, raising fears of an ideological and security crisis. Tensions escalated after the Muhammad Yunus-led interim government reversed its decision to recruit music and physical training teachers in government primary schools, a move hardline groups labelled "un-Islamic".

Officials say Yunus' decision to lift the ban on the Jamaat-e-Islami has backfired, emboldening Islamist forces. The Jamaat, long believed to be influenced by Pakistan's ISI, is now coordinating with radical groups such as Hefazat-e-Islam to demand stricter Islamic laws.

Bangladesh watchers describe the situation as an "Islamist counter-revolution" taking shape since the ouster of Sheikh Hasina. Following pressure from these groups, Yunus also relaxed visa rules for Pakistan and opened avenues for deeper engagement — a move seen as strengthening Islamabad's influence.

Officials believe the developments are part of a larger, well-planned conspiracy, much like the August

His network cut across ideology and geography — from left-leaning intellectual Noam Chomsky to former Trump adviser Steve Bannon. While some emailed to support him amid lawsuits, others sought introductions, political strategy, dating advice, investment tips and even help responding to sexual harassment allegations.

In one 2018 exchange, Bannon consulted Epstein while planning his political outreach in Europe. Epstein encouraged him, writing: "We should lay out a strategy plan... how much fun." Yet in exchanges with former Obama White House counsel Kathryn Ruemmler, Epstein insulted Trump, responding to her description of the former president as "gross" with: "worse in Wealthy figures including investor Peter Thiel, US politicians, Middle Eastern business magnates and European leaders appeared across the email trail.

Nepal's 'Green Election' code of conduct for March 5 polls

Ban on plastic and other nonbiodegradable materials during campaign; use of EVs instead of fossil-fuel vehicles, and disposal of waste after rallies or marches are some of the things that Nepal's poll body expects from political parties ahead of the March 5 general elections.

Media reports on Friday said the Election Commission (EC) has introduced a 'Green Election' code of conduct aimed at ensuring that the March 5 House of Representatives (HoR) election is conducted in an environmentally responsible manner. "The provision, outlined in Chapter 6 of the newly issued code of conduct, requires all election-related activities to be carried out in ways that minimise harm to the environment " said news portal MyRepublica.
